NATURAL GAS EXPLOSION

Pittsburgh Firemen Burned in a Horrible Manner.

Carelessness on the Part of a Plumber Causes the Disaster.

PITTSBURGH, PA., Jan. 12.—Assistant Chief of the Fire Department, John Steele, and five firemen were terribly burned at a fire on Thirteenth street this morning. Steele may die from his injuries. Two of the others are seriously burned and may also die. Their injuries were received from an explosion of natural gas, due to the carelessness of a plumber, who was putting some additional fixtures into the house where the accident occurred without first having shut off the gas. The alarm was turned in about half-past ten and four companies were soon on the ground. The fire was in the cellar, and the firemen got their hose run out and then went down into the cellar. An employee of the gas company arrived and attempted to shut off the gas at the stop-cock. It was twisted out of place and he could not do it. At the time Chief Evans, Assistant Chief John Steele and five or six firemen were down in the cellar. The water was turned on the flames, which by this time were making rapid progress. All at once there was a sharp, deafening explosion. Smoke and flames burst out upon the street, driving back the crowding people who had assembled. Cries of pain were heard, and then it dawned upon the firemen who were out on the street that their fellow-employees were down among the flames. The wall of the building had been blown out by the explosion. Above all the confusion could be heard the cries of Assistant Chief Steele, who was calling for some one to help him out. The firemen, regardless of their own danger, rushed down the cellar-way. Here and there a scorched fireman was groping his way out of the cellar-way. Then the firemen came across Assistant Chief Steele. He was groping about, blinded by the flames and by the terrible burns he had received about the face. He was brought out to the open air, but was unable to speak. His face was burned in a terrible manner, and his hands were so badly burned that the flesh in some places was broken open and exposed the bones. He was taken into the nearest drug store, where surgical attention was given him, and a carriage was procured and he was taken home. Patrick Graham, of Truck A, was very seriously burned about the face and hands, and had to be taken to his home, on Center avenue, in a carriage. He is badly hurt, but it was not thought by those who saw him that he was fatally injured. Joseph Milligan, also of Truck A, was seriously burned about the face and hands, and was taken to his home on High street. These three were the most seriously burned.

Rather Burn Than Jump.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Jan. 12.—At 5 o'clock this morning fire was discovered in Banning's saloon, on Court street. When the department arrived it was plainly seen that the entire block would go. Three alarms were sounded, calling every company. White's jewelry store, Lorberg's merchant tailor store, and Miss McCloud's restaurant were quickly destroyed. While the flames were doing this destructive work a figure was seen in the second story front room of Banning's saloon. It proved to be Thomas Murphy, aged sixty, a boarder, half dazed. He answered the cries of jump with, "I would rather burn than jump." His charred remains were taken out shortly afterwards.

THE CROPS OF 1886.

How Our Corn, Wheat and Oat Fields Turned Out Last Year.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The Department of Agriculture estimates of area, product and value of corn, wheat and oats for permanent record are completed. The official work of the year has been thoroughly reviewed with the aid of State cooperation, and all available data of crop production and the aggregates are substantially those recently reported. The corn crop, in round numbers, aggregate 1,665,000,000 bushels, grown on 75,000,000 acres, and has a farm value of $60,000,000. The yield is 22 bushels per acre—4½ bushels less than last year. The aggregate product of wheat is 457,000,000 bushels, from an area of 37,000,000 acres, having a farm value of $34,000,000. The average value is 68.7 cents per bushel, against 77.1 for the previous crop. The product of oats is 624,000,000 bushels, 5,000,000 less than last year, from an area of over 23,000,000 acres, producing a value of $186,000,000. The mob then pursued the company to the Marion House, where the officers defended them from the mob. Gorman's injuries are probably fatal.

Dr. E. D. Standiford.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 31st, '86.
Hon. K. F. Prichard;
Catlettsburg, Ky.

My dear sir:

I have your letter, which I warmly thank you for. I have received many letters, from prominent Democrats like yourself, throughout the State, urging me to become a candidate. The Press throughout the State has generally treated me with great courtesy. My pride and ambition are wrapped up in Kentucky. It is true, I have made money in Alabama and in the Northwest but I have brought it to Kentucky and invested the same in its industries. What we need in Kentucky is more energy and more capital, but the day is not far distant when we will have both and the majority of the non-tax-paying counties will become our heaviest tax-payers and thus relieve the burden, now resting so heavily upon the tax-paying counties. Manufacturers will spring up all over the State and our farmers will have a market at home for their products. As we grow richer in agricultural products, so we will grow richer in manufacturing industries and our own citizens-laborers will find more employment in our factories, foundries and workshops, thus bringing prosperity to our people and blotting out this eternal strife that is doing our State so much harm. The increased wealth will give us more revenue to enable us to educate the children of the Commonwealth and thus better qualify them to discharge their duties as citizens; therefore it may be a question, whether, I could not do the people of Kentucky more good in some other position, than that of Governor of the State, and in which I could have a better opportunity influencing capital to come to the State and aid in the development of its mineral wealth and from which there would be received handsome profits on the investments; and also having business engagements with some Eastern Capitalists, who wish to make investments in Kentucky enterprises, which will necessarily take me out of the State often for the next two or three months, and consequently, I fear will not have time to meet and confer with the people before the Democratic convention in May. I believe I can do much toward bringing capital into the State, as I have the fullest confidence of a great many Eastern Capitalists, having sold many bonds of different corporations in New York markets, and all-day selling above par. I enclose you a copy of a letter written to Senator Hays about a year ago, that fully explains my position as to the development of the various resources of Kentucky. Kentucky is not only richer in agricultural products, but far richer in mineral products than Alabama. She has a wonderful advantage in her geological situation and is very near the center of population in the United States, and yet capital is pouring into Alabama to-day at the rate of a thousand dollars where only one dollar comes into Kentucky, but by the same energy and vim capital can be brought into this State, as in my opinion no other section offers as grand inducements for profitable investments. Respectfully and Truly Yours,

E. D. STANDIFORD.

After a careful perusal of the letter written by Dr. E. D. Standiford to the Hon. K. F. Prichard, of Catlettsburg, we feel very much like endorsing him for any office he might ask at the hands of Kentuckians. It is true that almost any candidate for office who can write a good letter might say so much as the doctor has said in the communication which we take pleasure in publishing to-day, but what is said in this letter are the words of no common candidate. It comes from a man who does not seek office for any pecuniary profit to be obtained therefrom. Through years of the most untiring energy, combined with wonderful financial sagacity and supported by an intellectuality not found in a mere politician and trader, Dr. Standiford has placed himself far above and beyond the necessity of asking official station because a certain amount of lucre is attached thereto. Other things being equal we think a man who wants to represent Kentucky as a United States Senator, and who is well "fixed", as the slang phrase has it, is entitled to a very great degree of consideration. He is beyond temptation, even admitting that Senators can be tempted. And we here distinctly disclaim any intention of reflecting in the slightest degree on any Kentucky Senator, past or present.

Dr. Standiford is eminently a Kentuckian. He, as railroad magnate, Representative and Senator, is completely and thoroughly identified with Kentucky and her people—her enterprises and her development. What he accumulated through personal industry and legitimate speculation is in the State and not placed outside to injure to the benefit of foreign corporations. This being true it were wise policy on the part of our people to send to the Senate of the United States a man whose aim it would naturally be to foster any legitimate enterprise which had for its object the development of the natural and acquired resources of the State. A vast proportion of our natural wealth is buried in the mountains of our own section. So long as it lies dormant, having no one in the national councils to so shape legislation as to unlock the doors which now conceal our treasures, so long will such States as Alabama, not as rich by three-fourths as Kentucky, keep far in our van.

We have said this much concerning Dr. Standiford and his candidacy for the Senate in the hope that it will cause our readers to give a considerable attention to the gentleman and his claims and qualifications. He is fairly in the field, and when he enters for a race it is to win. Before we bring our imperfect notice of Dr. Standiford to a close we must say that we are glad he says nothing about his "services on many a hard-fought battle field"—on either side. The war, at least the shot and shell part of it, closed over twenty years ago, and we are in favor of giving the subject a rest.

Chattanooga Railway.

We clip the following from the Commercial Gazette:

A decree lately issued by the U. S. District Court, in Covington, Ky., for the sale of the Chattanooga Railway of Eastern Kentucky, is in accordance with an agreement between the owners of the Chattanooga Railway securities and the Charles-ton, Cincinnati and Chicago Railroad Company. This latter company intend to complete a railway line from the Ohio River to Charleston, S. C., before January 1, 1890, thus opening up an entirely new territory, several hundred miles in extent, to Cincinnati enterprise, for there are no other of our great inland cities that can successfully compete with her for this trade.

Their plan seems to be to work from their termini to the center, thus securing as fast as their road advances a good carrying trade. They are now extending the Chattanooga southward, and by the first of next May will reach the extensive fields of cannel coal, which are equal in quality to any obtained from abroad. When completed the

"Three C's" Railroad will leave the Ohio at Ashland, follow the Big Sandy River to Pikeville, there diverge and cross the boundary into Virginia through the breaks of the Cumberland. Traversing three Virginia and five Tennessee counties, it will enter North Carolina, cross that State in a southeast course, and passing through Blacks, Camden, Sumpter and other considerable towns, it will finally reach tide water at both Charleston and Georgetown. Following that route this railroad will intersect every trunk line east of the Cumberland Mountains, and by virtue of these connections will draw business from an immense field. But to Cincinnati and Charleston merchants this road when finished will mean more than any other, for it affords them facilities for commercial interchanges of the highest value. With the West Indies almost at the mouth of her harbor, and less than 750 miles of railroad connecting the two cities, Charleston will be the largest Southern dealer in West India goods and the heaviest in handling breadstuffs and Western meats. Between the two cities will speed long trains thus laden, while every mile of the immediate country will contribute to the tonnage. This road will open an immense field to our merchants and manufacturers. Between Marion, N. C., and Ashland, Ky., are fine iron ore, red, fossiliferous and brown hematite, and the high grade magnetic ore of Cranberry. In the same belt are coal seams of enormous extent and limestone in abundance. The furnaces of the Hanging Rock District, when supplied with these ores and with coke will double their present capacity, while new ones will be built, at various intermediate points. Steel mills will be erected near the coke blast furnaces, and all along the line indicated—two hundred and fifty miles in extent—will be one of the busiest and most densely settled iron manufacturing districts of the United States. This population would naturally look to the city for its supplies, and this trade, gained and held, will be an ever-increasing source of business and wealth to our merchant houses. First, the Hanging Rock district, then Southwest Virginia, East Tennessee and Western North Carolina, finally all south of the Blue Ridge to the ocean will be open to Cincinnati enterprise. Our city secured at an immense cost the trade flowing into it over the Cincinnati-Southern. The "Three C's" road will give us a trade vastly greater without any call upon us for its construction.

WEDDING BELLS.

MARRIED—In Louisa, Kentucky, on Wednesday evening, Jan. 19th, 1887, at the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. Dr. Williamson, Miss Thurza Burns to Rev. Chester H. Williamson, pastor of the West Covington M. E. C., Covington, Ky., and Miss Lizzie Burns to Mr. Lucien Johnson, of Ironton, bookkeeper and civil engineer for the Great Western Mining and Manufacturing Company, Peach Orchard.

Reader have you ever used Tabler's Buckeye Pile Ointment? If you have tried it for piles, we are sure you will heartily agree with us that this preparation although good for nothing else in the wide world is the best remedy ever offered to the public for piles. In fact it is the only safe, simple and effectual cure for that disease.

Dyspeptic persons, would you be cured of this dreadful disease, and all others arising from the use of common saleratus or soda? Also, have white, light and healthy bread or biscuit? Let not fail to procure a procure a paper of J. Monroe Taylor's Gold Medal, after which you will never use any other. It is the best in the world. Try it. Gall on your Grocer for it. At wholesale by all dealers.

Persons in ordinary circumstances cannot afford to be sick when a heavy bill from a doctor is the result. The latter can be obviated if you have a cough or cold, by the timely use of Coussens' Honey of Tar, which has been long in use, and is universally conceded to be the only pure and simple remedy for a cough or cold.

Col. Northup says that the Chattaroi railroad will be built up the Sandy Valley, and be connected with a road in Virginia just as soon as the work can be done. By the time this is accomplished, a railroad by the most direct route will have been completed from Ashland to Cincinnati. This will form a complete line from Chicago to Charleston, and the line will be owned by a company called the Chicago, Cincinnati & Charleston R. R. Co. It is predicted that this road will become one of the richest in the United States.

Jay Gould can afford the luxury of a strike—the strikers themselves can stand the want of employment temporarily—the business world can recuperate from the losses incident to suspension of trade, but no one who suffers with a cough, cold, or disease of the throat and lungs can afford to be without Coussens' Honey of Tar. It is a necessity to them.

The proceedings of the Kentucky State Teachers' Association, held in Louisville July 7th, 8th and 9th, 1886, are on sale in pamphlet form at the Office of the Supt. of Schools in Louisa, at 10c per copy, by order of Mrs. N. S. Williams, Vice President of the 13th Educational District, composed of the following counties: Greenup, Boyd, Carter, Rowan, Lawrence, Morgan, Johnson, Martin, Elliott, Magoffin, Floyd and Pike. The is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years Doctors pronounced it a "local disease, and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure now on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful.

It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circular and testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75.

FARM AND FIRESIDE.

A good cement for china is ordinary carriage varnish; if put together neatly the fracture will be hardly perceptible, and it is not affected by water.—Troy Times.

Cheese Fingers: Make a nice puff paste, roll out a quarter of an inch thick, cut into halves. Grate over one part cheese, mixed with a little cayenne pepper and salt; lay the other half on it and cut into pieces three inches long and half an inch wide.—The Household.

Beef Fritters: Beef fritters are good for breakfast. Chop pieces of steak or cold roast beef very fine; make a batter of milk flour and an egg, and mix the meat with it; put a lump of butter into a saucepan, let it melt, then drop the batter into it from a large spoon. Fry until brown, season with pepper and salt and a little parsley.—Exchange.

In embroidery much use is made of stout white sheeting. Some of the patterns of the old India cotton bedspreads are outlined on unsized sheeting and worked in crewels, blues, pink or green, always in one color only for the whole pattern. "Old gold" colored silk makes beautiful etching outlines on white sheeting. For the white enameled furniture (China gloss painting, as it is called), bureau scarfs and bedspreads of unbleached linen, are worked with pale brown crewel.—N. Y. Post.

It may be surprising to some farmers to be told that filling a horse's ruck with hay, as some do, and permitting a constant supply to remain before the animal, is one of the most probable means of producing disease, and the most positive in rendering the animal unfit for fast work. Large supplies of hay have the effect of making the stomach large and weak. Everybody knows, too, that the ventilation of the stable should be as perfect as possible, so that all the odors and gases will have an opportunity to escape.—Western Rural.

CONTINUOUS CROPPING.

The Growth of Barley for Thirty Successive Years on the Same Soil.

Dr. Gilbert has recently been disengaging to the students of the Royal Agricultural College of England about the growth of barley for thirty years or more in succession on the same land and treated in many different ways on different plots. Two of these plots unmanured during the whole period show how a well-tillied soil can bear such a strain in the course of great fluctuations due to the varying seasons; the crops ranged from 6-14 bushels per acre up to more than 30 bushels.

The average yield of the last sixteen years was a third less than that of the first sixteen years; but, on the other hand, the yield of the last four years was greater than of any other four years of the last period of sixteen years. The decline was more rapid than in the case of wheat, for the reason, Dr. Gilbert thinks, that barley is naturally a more shallow feeder than wheat, and its more limited feeding ground is sooner exhausted.

Manured continuously with farm-yard manure at the heavy rate of fourteen tons to the acre the crop increased, but not in any proportion to the amount of food supplied. In the first twenty years that this plot was thus manured 4,000 pounds of nitrogen were put in the soil, but less than a seventh of this was recovered in the crops; if the other six-sevenths were all left in the soil in a reasonably available condition, it should be sufficient for the nitrogen supply of 150 crops of barley as large as the average annual yield of the preceding twenty years.

Analysis of the soil at the end of twenty years of this manuring proving the presence of over twice as much nitrogen as in the soil of the unmanured plot, showed that it was not leached out. From this time on this plot was divided; on one half the heavy manuring was continued, while the other half was left without any manuring; this half gave much better crops than the plot which had received no manuring from the beginning; but the yield diminished from year to year in spite of the very large quantity of nitrogen accumulated there; this nitrogen being mostly in insoluble compounds, and unavailable for immediate use, was less effective than that of the stable manure, a portion of which is soluble and at once available.

Every decently cared-for soil, and even many soils that have been much abused, contain large stores of these insoluble nitrogen compounds, which would be worth much to the country if they would be rapidly utilized. In some localities the conditions as to soil or climate, or both, are so favorable to its conversion into soluble forms that nitrogenous manures appear to be of little account; and those who are so fortunate as to live in such places preach with increasing assiduity the entirely untenable and unreasonable doctrine that nitrogenous manuring is of no use anywhere.

A different mode of cropping, with a less heavy manuring, would have told a different story as to the amount of nitrogen of the manure recoverable in the produce; a rotation including, with the barley, Indian corn, roots or clover, heavier feeders, and feeding during a larger part of the season while the important process of nitrification is going on, would take up more of the nitrogen than the shallow-rooted and short-lived barley. The farmer would thus get more of an immediate return for the expense of the plant-food put in the soil, and moreover save more of the nitrogen from being utterly lost to him by leaching through the soil into the drains and water courses as it is slowly converted into soluble nitrogen.—Dr. G. C. Coldwell, in N. Y. Tribune.

HEALTH HINTS.

A cheerful mind is better than all the drugs in the materia medica.

To prevent mustard-plasters from blistering mix with the white of an egg.

DR. GROSS recommends diluted vinegar as an injection into the bladder to break up blood clots.

Inflammations are most safely and far more agreeably subdued by the application of warm water than of cold.

Don't neglect to give the baby a drink of water once or twice a day. The nursing baby cries often from thirst than from hunger.

Convulsions may frequently be cut short like magic by turning the patient on his left side. The nausea as after effect of chloroform or ether narcosis may be generally controlled in the same manner.

Excellent tooth powder: Suds of castile soap and spirits of camphor, of each an equal quantity; thicken with equal quantities of pulverized chalk and charcoal to a thick paste; apply with the finger or brush.

MUSTARD, according to Dr. Richardson, is best applied by soaking a sponge with it. Tie the sponge up in a handkerchief and apply the convex side. This mustard sponge can be remoistened several times for reapplication.

For warts, corns and other indurations of the cuticle, nothing acts more satisfactorily than a mixture of equal parts of tincture of iodine and glacial acetic acid, applied in repeated layers with a brush night and morning.

It has been shown by actual experiment that the water which streams down the inside of the window of a closed sleeping-room is so impregnated with the noxious exhalations of the sleepers that one drop is sufficient to poison a rabbit.

In cases of undue sweating of the feet, accompanied by soreness and whitening of the skin of the sole, a cure may be readily effected by the application once a day of equal parts of citrine ointment and unguent rose. The feet should be bathed frequently.

A growing inability to sleep in sickness is ominous of fatal result; in apparent health it indicates the failure of the mind and madness; so, on the other hand, in disease or dementia a very slight improvement in the sleeping should be hailed as the harbinger of restoration.

Brown's Little Joke.

"Why, Brown, how short your coat is," said Jones one day to his friend Brown, who wittily replied: "Yes; but it will be long enough before I get another." Some men spend so much for medicines that neither heal nor help them, that new clothes is with them like angels' visits—friends and relatives. In small fevers, and especially in those of rheum and lingering coughs, soon yield to the magic influence of that royal remedy, Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery."

UPSIDE down—Feather bed.—N. Y. Independent.
